Goodbye for now, Jack

After five years on Generations: The Legacy, Vusi Kunene is taking a break from the show. Kunene's villainous character, Jack Mabaso, makes his thrilling exit on Wednesday, 12 May.

"I've always had a serious passion for Jack, says Kunene. "He is the most popular character I have ever played and bringing him to life has been a pleasure. I'm really going to miss everyone because Generations is like a family," he continues.

"It's not one person's work, it's all our work. We all pull together and that's what makes it so special."

Generations: The Legacy Producer, Karen Vundla says:

"Vusi Kunene is one of South Africa's most talented actors and it has been a privilege for us to enjoy a long history with him. We are incredibly sad to see him go but we wish him all the best in the new projects he chooses to pursue."

Jack Mabaso's exit will air on Wednesday, 12 May when a long-standing bitter rivalry comes to a bloody head.

Don't miss Generations: The Legacy, weekdays at 8PM on SABC 1.
